NEVADA CITY —

Sportmen's Paradise

WHERE, WHEN and HOW THEY'RE BITING
and Other Sportsmen's Items

Reports are that Scotts Flat is getting fairly well fished out although hundreds are expected at the new lake again this holiday week-end. More than 200 limits were taken from the lake on the Memorial day week-end.

An authoritative sources tells us Fordyce creek and the Yuba river are excellent fishing this week, but that all fishermen in the high country should take the precaution of wearing high rubber boots for protection against snakes.

Fishermen coming from the streams say this is the worst year in many for snakes with one report claiming two rattlers were observed at Culbertson with snow patches still on the ground.

A windy weekend caused rough water and spoiled the fishing somewhat in Bowman, Spaulding, French, Independence, Donner and others of the larger lakes. Our genial secretary of the Chamber of Commerce was up to some of these lakes over the weekend and reported ill luck, a common complaint of most fishermen. Like the fisherman we met in Coos Bay last year who said the luck was lousy and yet we saw several 20-pound stripers in his creel.

As a whole though troll fishing has been slacking off and several good fly fishing spots have been cleaned, particularly the Black lakes. Phoenix lake has been reported with rough fish and to be shied from.

If you like the small brook trout Milk lake is swarming with them, but if you like to stretch your arms when reporting your catch try Culbertson and the Crooked lakes. Some 20-inchers are being snagged there. Rock and Shotgun are still good.

Sierra county lakes—Gold, Packer, Young America, Deer and the Sardine lakes—are still furnishing excellent catches, although some Waltoneers have had to resort to a variety of baits. The fish in these lakes are apparently becoming educated to the wiles of the veteran sportsmen.

Hunters and trappers of the division of fish and game removed a total of 712 predatory animals during the month of May, reports the bureau of game conservation.

From 29 counties, state employees took 249 coyotes, 142 bobcats, 146 foxes, 47 skunks, 43 raccoons, 26 porcupines, 27 badgers, and 32 lesser predators. Pelts of fur-bearing animals are sold to commercial dealers, with proceeds added to the fish and game preservation fund.

By counties, the following animals were taken during the month: El Dorado—6 coyotes, 5 bobcats, 6 raccons, 2 foxes; Nevada-Sierra—7 coyotes, 1 bobcat, 3 porcupines; Nevada-Yuba—4 coyotes, 6 raccoons, 4 foxes, 8 skunks, 1 porcupine, 1 bear; Plumas—23 coyotes, 12 bobcats.

There's a ray of hope for California farmers plagued with crop eating deer.

It is contained in the monthly report of the division of fish and game which reveals continuing experiments with deer repellent sprays.

In recent years, the state's all-time high population of deer and unprecedented development of agricultural land have combined to make trouble for landowners, the division of fish and game, and the deer.

In a cautiously worded report, Bureau Chief Joseph S. Hunter tells of successful spraying experiments in the Napa valley vineyard country. New chemical compounds, he announced, have produced promising results even under adverse weather conditions.

Experiments will continue until a fool-proof spray is developed, Hunter concluded, at which time the bureau's findings will be available to California landowners.

From the Mount Shasta hatchery, 59,473 catchable-sized rainbow and eastern brook trout were planted in northern California lakes and streams during the month of May, reports the division of fish and game.

More than 120,000 rainbow trout were planted in Plumas county waters during the month of May by crews from the Lake Almanor hatchery of the division of fish and game.

Calaveras and Tuolumne county waters received a plant of 20,603 catchable-sized rainbow trout during the month of May, reports the division of fish and game.

Since the first open hunting season on antelope in the Modoc Lassen area in 1942, the herd has increased from 3,600 to 4,675, reports the division of fish and game.

The following general regulations apply to current hunting and fishing.

ESCAPES PROBABLE DEATH IN CAR WRECK

L. H. Yeakle missed probable death Tuesday afternoon when his automobile overturned and burned on the Banner Mountain road near the Gracey mine.

Yeakle apparently lost control of the car traveling towards Nevada City and landed upside down at the side of the road. An explosion fololwed and the car was enveloped with flames. The driver dazedly scrambled from the car just before it burst into flames, but otherwise was only injured to the extent of scratches on his arms sustained when he exited through a window.

Don Glendon, driver of the California division of forestry truck dispatched to the scene, reported the car was destroyed.

NUGGET OFFERS TRADE-BUILDING COUPON PLAN

This issue of The Nugget is the first of five in July that non-subscribers will receive as well as regular subscribers.

The five issues will acquaint Nevada City residents with the New Nugget. Many changes have taken place since the paper was purchased by the Wray brothers in February.

A new easier reading legible news face has replaced the old worn-out and out-dated type.

Several fonts of new type faces have been added.

Machinery, the linotype, newspaper press, saw and folder, have been repaired and are in near perfect running condition at present. The Wray brothers spent many long extra hours producing a paper with the battered equipment, but they now feel those kind of hours are a thing of the past.

An automatic Miehle Vertical job printing press is being installed and will quadruple the production capacity of the commercial printing department.

The Nugget has developed a county-wide news coverage and will always strive to perfect a more complete coverage of news. The Nugget in the past few months has developed an enviable reputation for accuracy and completeness in its news coverage. Columns for sportsmen and schools have attracted much favorable approval.

The Nugget has attained a healthy growth of approximately 25 per cent in circulation without any campaign.

But now with the machinery in good condition, The Nugget will conduct a circulation campaign during the month of July.

This is the plan:

The Nugget the New Nugget, has a subscription rate of $2.50 for one year. For that $2.50 you will receive every Tuesday and Friday morning (legal holidays excepted) for one year The New Nugget with complete coverage of Nevada City and Nevada county news, accurately reported and legibly printed.

During the month of July we will return to you $1 of that year's subscription money in the form of a coupon which can be redeemed for merchandise in various stores of Nevada City. So, actually, The Nugget will cost you only $1.50 for the year. This special value is available to old subscribers as well as new subscribers. Old subscribers may extend their subscriptions by taking advantage of this offer.

Historical Museum May Have Branch At North San Juan

BERT REYNOLDS PLANS NOVELTY DIE CASTING

Bert Reynolds, 325 Gethsemane, is ironing out the finer points of what could develop into a thriving novelty manufacturing business for Nevada City..

Reynolds has 25 years experience designing machinery for canneries in the bay area, and holds patents for 17 machines. Reynolds was the inventor of the juice machine now manufactured by the Miners Foundry, Nevada City.

Reynolds current invention is a vertical die casting machine with a perfected double chamber idea for injection mold process with a built-in heating chamber. The machine has controlled pressure.

His current set of dies will mold a novelty lighthouse.

The machine, when perfected, will produce 100 units an hour. Roman Rozynski will handle the production after backing is secured. Reynolds does not plan to be in the novelty production end, but wants to continue building and inventing machines.

ROTARY TOLD ENGLAND WILL ALWAYS BE

"There will always be an England" was the thought impressed upon members of the Nevada City Rotary club yesterday noon at the weekly luncheon meeting in Deer Creek Inn, after they had heard Ernest W. Owen, British vice consul in San Francisco, speak of his native land. He was introduced by R. V. Conrad, program chairman.

Lloyd Geist opened the meeting but immediately turned the gavel over to Marvin Shock, new president of the club. A letter of thanks and appreciation from Miss Joyce Lee was read. It was in response to a scholarship she had been awarded from the club.

Owen, a native of Wales, was a major in the first world war. He lived in Canada many years between wars. Turned down for military duty at the start of the second conflagration he entered public relations for the British government, and later served as consul in Detroit.

Owen called for a better understanding between the British empire people and Americans. He stressed the common language of the two great democracies and pointed out that English tenacity and American ingenuity were major factors of allied victory in both wars. The combination of the two qualities won the war, he declared.

Owen lauded his native people for their endurance, austerity and bull-dogged determination, both during the war and the post-war era. The consul asserted the Marshall plan is proving the salvation of England, but that many American dollars are still needed in the British fight to regain its international footing.

He reiterated the famous fighting words of England's wartime minister, Winston Churchill, and told his audience of war's horror as he saw it visited to the British isles.

Consul Owen spent the week in the gold country and has delivered talks before the Nevada City Lions club and other twin cities organizations.

CONWAY'S NEW STORE WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Conway's, one of Grass Valley's leading style shops, will move across the street into new quarters tomorrow. The shop was founded many years ago by Mrs. H. K. Conway and is now under the active management of her son, Fred Conway.

The new store, on the southwest corner of Main and Bank streets, has large plate glass window space. Redwood trim is used throughout. The floor of the store carries out the entrance tile motif with replica garden tile. Lighting is from hidden ceiling units. Unique is the interior wall motif. One wall is solid rose with the opposite in colorful wallpaper.

DEDICATION OF PIONEER BURIAL GROUND JULY 3

A bronze plaque measuring 11 inches by 38 inches is being fastened to a granite block today by Ludwig Netz, Nevada City stonemason, in preparation for dedication of the marble monument in honor of Aaron A. Sargent, early day Nevada City leader, at the Pioneer cemetery Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock as part of the Nevada county Fourth of July Centenial celebration. The cemetery will also be dedicated.

Peter T. Conmy, curator of the Oakland public library, and Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, will deliver the dedicatory address. Appearing on the program will also be Joseph R. Knowland, chairman of the California Centennial commission, and an Oakland publisher, and probably an extemporaneous talk by Aaron Sargent, grandson of the pioneer.

Dr. C. W. Chapman, native Nevada City resident, whose family has been contemporary of the Sargent family for three generations, is chairman of the program.

Dr. Chapman announces the program Sunday will be started with a parade headed by the Nevada City band. The parade will form at the Plaza and move up Broad street to the cemetery. The band will play selections at the cemetery. Willard Goerz is directing the band.

Invocation, the Rev. Dahlbren Casey, pastor of Methodist church.

Introductions of persons on the speakers' platform by Dr. Chapman.

Address by Knowland.

Selections by the renowned Gold Miners chorus.

Address by Conmy.

Benediction, the Rev. Father Patrick O'Reilly, St. Patrick's Catholic church, Grass Valley.

Selections by the band.

Persons present at the reunion in Grass Valley who will attend the dedication will be conveyed by buses from Grass Valley to the cemetery and back and will be convoyed by the California highway patrol.

The plaque's wording, composed by Dr. Chapman, and approved by Knowland, is as follows:

"This memorial originally marked the grave of Hon. Aaron A. Sargent in Laurel Hill Cemetery, San Francisco. When that cemetery was being removed in 1940 the memorial was transferred by the Native Sons of the Golden West to Pioneer Cemetery in Nevada City, which was the scene of this distinguished pioneer's early activities.

"Rededicated July 3, 1949.

"Tablet placed by Historic Landmarks committee.

The monument was brought to Nevada City in 1940 but before a dedication ceremony could be

AARON A. SARGENT

Death came, as it must to all men, many many years ago for Aaron Augustus Sargent, printer, statesman, minister plenipotentiary. Yet so great was his personality that this Sunday the third generation of his contemporaries will gather to dedicate a stone, bronze and marble momument to his memory.

Death brings oblivion to the desert lives of so many of us. To Sargent it gave immortality in the annals of Nevada county, the state, and to some degree the nation. Sargent won his immortality, not by one deed of heroism on some bloody useless battlefield, not by one great discovery, creation or accident; but by a lifetime devoted to the task at hand. Whether the task was humble or sublime it had his every effort. Sargent is remembered, not for one thing, but for accumulation of years of duty to his career.

SOCIALISM BRINGS DISILLUSIONMENT

An article in The Atlantic Monthly observes that socialism has brought a good deal of disillusionment to Britain. The coal mines are an especially apt example. Absenteeism is as frequent and disputes as great as under private management. The slight increase in output per man-shift is attributed to progress that has been made in copying American production methods, rather than any increase in worker morale. The article goes on to say, "Nationalization, to the ordinary miner down in the pit, has always meant that the industry would become his own. Now the miners claim it is not nearly the same thing to discover it is the nation's industry. In fact, they claim that the old private owner was always present to be conferred with —he was not the helples agent of a remote and soulless board in London."

Can anyone believe that American coal miners would have made such remarkable progress in bettering their lot if we had had a socialized industry? Under private enterprise, the mine union has grown enormously powerful. Management is always present to confer with union heads over wages, working conditions, and any other controversial point. The result is that the average American coal miner earns some $75 a week, and many earn $100 and upwards. Living standards in our typical mining towns would seem unbelievable to the British miners.

The Atlantic's article also said, "In Britain today such old-fashioned ideas as enterprise, efficiency, and thrift are at a dangerous discount. The British community has come to put other economic and social ideals a long way ahead of productivity." That always happens when socialist and communist ideologies take over. All the people become poorer— and the workers become porest of all.

BUILDING

Success is built on very small margins. The faster runner in the world isn't more than five per cent faster than scores of ordinary runners. The difference between a great race horse and a good race horse is only a few minutes or seconds. No man can be successful more than a minute, the minutes in which he completes a successful job; but the minute the applause dies down, the world raises the ante on you and says, "Let's see you do it again —and better."

And—success is not a matter of efficiency and talent. It's just plain willingness to work and keep going through thick and thin. This reminds us of a story. A centipede, scurrying about proficiently on its 100 legs. One day it was halted by a questioner who said: "Centipede, how do you walk around so proficiently while maneuvering no less than 50 pairs of legs? When you start to walk, which leg do you move first?"

Never had this question accurred to the centipede. Which leg—come to think of it, DID move first? Leg No. 8? Leg No. 14? The centipede worked itself into an agony of analysis and indecision. And it was never able to walk another step. Completely paralyzed by its insoluble intellectual problem, it remained immobile and slowly starved to death.

In building your community, your Chamber of Commerce, or any other it is not necessary you see a reason for everything or complete solution of every problem. Faith with progressive effort, efforts a little better than before—always build for success.

Judge of thine improvement, not by what thou speakest or writest, but by the firmness of thy mind, and the government of thy passions and affections. —Fuller

The tongue, being in a wet place, is likely to slip when going fast.

Strange and Interesting Facts

The word 'Gob' — as applied to a sailor is derived from the sound of a Chinese word meaning a navy man — mac —

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder at the fairy tales
That many still believe,
I Wonder if their authors wrote
Intending to deceive;
Or did they write for fame and kale,
In ages long ago,
Oh well, we find that nice tall tales
By repetitions grow.

Human beings have been gullible ever since they began walking upon two feet; even now in this age of so called materialism, almost any tall story will find believers. Strange, isn't it?

Now we are not so ready to believe tales that come to us from other nations and other peoples; no American of today places credence in the mythologies of Greece, Rome, Egypt or the Scandanavian countries, of course not. Those ancient stories of gods, godesses, fays and nymphs were discredited long ago, but we harbor quite a number similar productions of wild imagining; they may be poor things, but they are our own and oh, how we do cling to them!

Still we are not as gullible as we used to be; it behooves us to wake up and apply reasonable doubt to sensational claimants to our credulity. Let the debunking go on, I say, even if it sweeps Washington's cherry tree and the exploits of many a Rowan into the discard.

In a letter received recently and written by a Bay Region friend, he asserts that much of the sensationalism which has grown up upon the Mother Lode might well be forgotten. I believe that is true, for in repetitions they have grown from more to more and the author of the latest thriller which has to do with the olden trails flies loose ends and gives free reign to his imagination.

The exploits of Joaquin Murietta and Lola Montez have ben greatly overdone as have the careers of many another character, real or imaginary of those fabulous gold rush days whose memory we are now commemorating.

It is high time for some one to write intelligently and with authority about the men and women who founded our golden empire of the west; they were not dark browed, desperadoes on shooting expeditions bent and perhaps that is the very reason why accounts of their constructive labors is not unduly popular.

However, during this time of centennial celebration, I would like to see the wild men and women of gold rush days, shoved into the background. Let's consider the real heroes who conquered the west. The founders of towns and cities the builders of homes, churches and school houses, the men who constructed mile upon mile of flumes, ditches, and tunnels and labored earnestly to filch gold from auriferous gravels and quartz rock.

I knew a number of genuine forty niners when I was a youngster and there wasn't one among them who said, "them thar hills," not one of them who had in his early adventures packed two guns or wore a chip upon his shoulder. There are always two sides to every question, so I'm pleading with writers of western fiction to stress the careers of our empire builders and let the wild and woolly bad men "lie down for an aeon or two." Why not?

ITCHING FOR ACTION IN THE OMINICAN FIGHTING

The official Dominican radio station said, June 22, that Trujillo will denounce any nation that aided in the attemped airborne invasion earlier in the week.

GOLD DIGGER'S TRAIL

Charles Scott Haley

"Ah knows wheah theahs two good acres of bottom land that Ah can make a down payment on, suh. An' get me a span of good mules. Fum now on, Ah intends to look out foh me."

"How about a wife, Seymour? You're not married, are you?"

"Nossuh. But Ah knows a high yaller gall what's willin'."

Peace be to him! I have no doubt but what in Mississippi, he is a landowner now and one of the pillars of his church. He certainly played an excellent game of poker, because it was not the first time that he had brought me most of the company payroll for safe keeping.

We finally arrived at Charleston, South Carolina, and went to Columbia, at Camp Jackson, for discharge. Here I noticed a strange phenomenon. Right after receiving discharge those colored boys went home in uniform, because Uncle Sam's clothes were all they owned. But hardly one of them but what had bought wound stripes and chevrons to sew on their sleeves. Very few of the dark gals that were waiting at home had to be content with less than a returning corporal, or sergeant, at least.

When the time came to be mustered out, I was detailed to return to San Francisco, where I had enlisted. But it was up to me to arrange the detail of discharge for all of my command. I was delighted to receive from Sergeant Quinliven a sort of round robin, written and signed by all the white non-coms in the outfit, which I still treasure to this day. Also another letter from those under whom I served.

I thought it would be wise to line up my colored boys for one last formation before dismissing them to their train. I gave them what advice I could—told them to forget that in France they had been waited upon by white women, or else, as they returned to their homes in Georgia and Tennessee, their lives would be very short indeed. I told them that I had appreciated their faithful and loyal service, and that if I ever came through the South on my travels, that I wished any of them recognizing me would come up and speak to me. And here I made a social offer.

"You can't tell," said I, "but what you may meet me when you need a five spot some time."

Immediately after formation was dismissed, no less than four of my old orderlies came up and assured me that they needed that five right now. They would pay it back—oh, yes! All they wanted was the "borrow" of it. Oh, yes, suh.

"Well, boys," I said, thinking fast, "If I loan you five dollars apiece you'll owe it to me and have to pay it back, won't you?"

"Oh, yessuh, suah. We aims to pay it back. Suah, suh."

"Well, suppose I give you a dollar apiece. Then you won't owe me anything, and you won't have to bother about paying me back."

And before they could think that one over too long, I shucked out a dollar apiece and turned for my quarters. Thereby I saved sixteen dollars and they were four dollars ahead.

I hated to leave my white noncoms, who had faithfully served me in many ways, and when I said good-bye to Sergeant Quinliven, I gave him a little French automatic which I had bought in Nevers. As a very foolish ruling had decreed that only commissioned officers could retain their sidearms, he was delighted.

About a hundred of my colored boys were lined up and waiting for me as I went to my train. One big corporal, of Zulu blood, who had been my mainstay, Corporal William Richmond, who was color bearer for the battallion, came up to me and wrung my hand.

Suh, Ah caint tell you how sorry we is to lose you. You jest been a father to us Tennessee cullud boys."

I appreciated the compliment—and said good-bye to my children.

Going through Washington, I drew whatever pay and allowances I had coming, including the traditional sixty dollars for a suit of civilian clothes, and withdrew all my funds from a Washington bank in the form of a cashier's check.

I took train for Chicago, and as I had run out of petty cash, I had it in mind to call up a friend and have him come down to the train and cash a check for me. He came down, but we were so busy discussing old times that it was not until I was standing on the observation platform waving good-bye to him that I remembered that I had forgotten all about the check.

Taking stock, I found that I still had one dollar and ten cents. I had to ask the porter for some special accommodation in an hour or two, and gave him the dollar.

And all the three day journey home, being in uniform, I was regaled at almost every stop with coffee, sandwiches, doughnuts and what have you, by patriotic groups of women who were at every train as the returning boys passed through.

And I arrived home with ten cents still in my pocket!

Saturdays night it will present an hour and a half of concert music at the corner of Mill and Bank streets in Grass Valley. Sunday it will present a program at Hennessy field preceding the fireworks display. It will give another concert Monday evening at Hennessy field, and will participate in the parade and the patriotic exercises at the Veterans Memorial building Monday.

Appearing in the parade will be the Salvation Army band, directed by Harry Leighton.

NEVADA CITY UNITS IN FESTIVAL PARADE

Nevada City organizations entering floats or units in the parade Monday in Grass Valley include Veterans of Foreign Wars, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, city council, Chamber of Commerce, Elks lodge, Rotary club, Hydraulic Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, Laurel Parlor Native Daughters of the Golden West, Cootiettes, fire department, fire department auxiliary, band, Business and Professional Women's club, Tribe of Redmen, Degree of Pocahontas, Neighbors of Woodcraft, Elementary Parent-Teachers association, Nevada County Farm Bureau, state division of forestry, 4-H club, North San Juan, Camptonville and Vicinity Chamber of Commerce, Columbia Parlor Native Daughters of the Golden West, Nevada county sheriff's posse.

Old Gold Jewelry Is Etiquette at Festival

The mining committee of the Nevada County Fourth of July Centennial celebration requests everyone wear old gold jewelry during the celebration. Nugget and gold quartz jewelry is preferred.

The committee has also been active in the organization and placement of the many gold exhibits to be displayed in Grass Valley stores during the celebration.

TRIBUTE TO SARGENT AND COUNTY PIONEERS

It is truly and just that the County Centennial Celebration plans to dedicate the monument of A. A. Sargent and the Pioneer cemetery on Sunday, July 3, at 3:30 p.m. This was the first cemetery in the cty and was used until it was completely occupied; it is therefore the last resting place of many of the pioneer fathers and mothers: after the lapse of nearly a century there is little else we can do.

The City Council has, by resolution, agreed to maintain the cemetery so that at all times its appearance will be creditable. The performance of this small token should be full and complete. It was they who gave us life and love.

Over the entrance to the State Library at Sacramento you will find this inscription—GIVE ME MEN TO MATCH MY MOUNTAINS. Such were the men and women of those pioneer days; and in comparison with the most humble of them we are very, very common; many of them were men of the finest talents and attainments, whose occupations embraced every trade and calling known to mankind.

The reflection of the glistening particles of gold found at Coloma entered every home, mansion and castle throughout the world. From countries far and near—large and small—torrid, temperate and frigid, embarked the greatest trek in the history of the world. All those making the trek were in the fullness of life and whether their surroundings were happy or otherwise it required courage and initiative of the highest degree to tear asunder the threads of life that bound them to their place of birth and to embark on that long journey seeking to establish a new home for their families in a new and little known land.

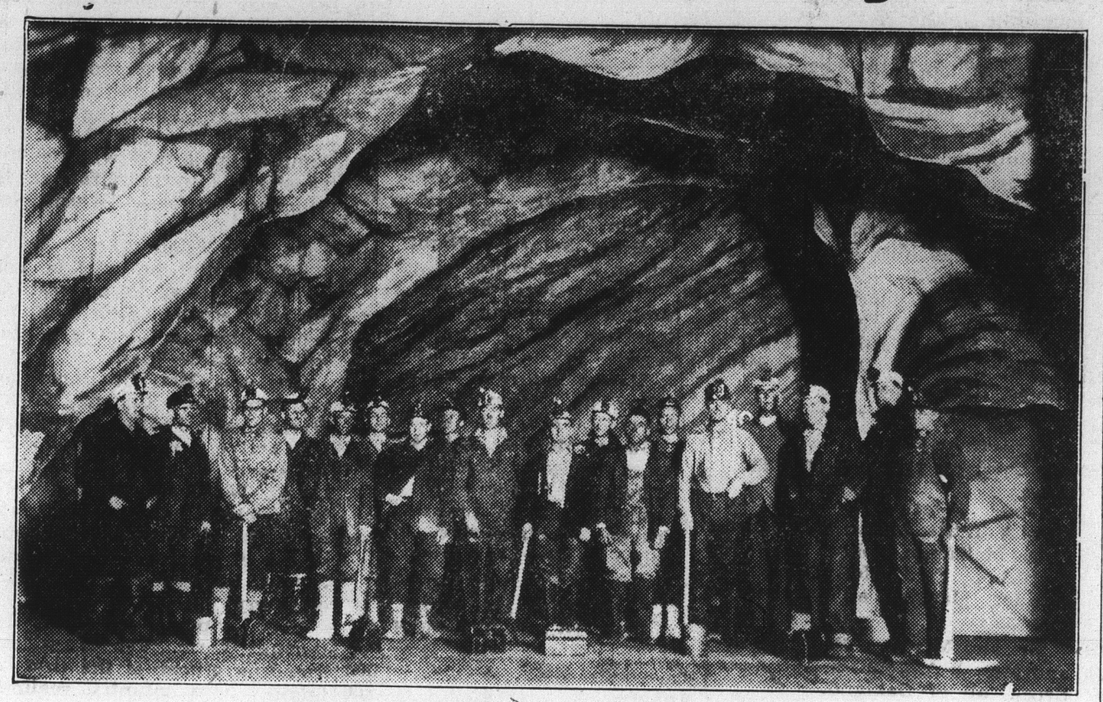
Three thousand walked across the plains of this country, their belongings in a wheelbarrow, accompanied by a milk cow.

Nevada county was fortunate that so many outstanding men located here. A. A. Sargent was one of the most notable of them. These men immediately organized and set in motion means of securing law and order. Organizations were formed and property rights and the liberties of citizens were established. Because of these things Nevada county had fewer scenes of violence and lawlessness than many other portions of this state. Mining laws were proclaimed and enforced in each camp; the justice of which was recognized furnishing the foundation for the mining laws that were adopted in the state constitution.

Many of these men were lawyers, and as the state developed set up practises and were rewarded with the highest offices as justices of the supreme court and other high positions. Some of these were Judge Nile Searles (grandfather of the outstanding Searles of today), T. B. McFarland, A. C. Niles, Thos. H. Caswell, Judge Rearden, E. M. Preston, Worshipful Master of the Masonic Order in California, and Chas. Marsh. In all lines of endeavor competent leaders were available.

These men and women early recognized the great potentiality of the state. To them it was the promised land that had been withheld from the sight of men until, through natural evolution, he was capable of possessing and administering it. Here he beheld one of the fairest spots on God's green earth. It was carved out of the land grant ceded to the government by Mexico after the Mexican war. When the treaty approving this was up for ratification in the senate, Daniel Webster, senator from Massachusetts arose and spoke as follows: "This land is composed of vast deserts; the native Indians are hostile and resent the presence of settlers; the long coast line has few adequate harbors; this purchase will always be a drain on the federal treasury. —Yet in a few short years, the golden harvest of the gravel beds by which we are surrounded became a great factor in maintaining the credit of the government during the Civil war, and today we find this state third in population in the nation and the greatest in increasing population. In income taxes and all other forms of taxes we are fourth or fifth. This did not happen by itself. Hard work, sacrifices, thrift and wise administrators are responsible.

On this day and hour the committee has designated, we shall honor these hardy men and women and pay our deepest respects to them; and we will do likewise on the following day for our national benefactors. In spirit we will gather them in our arms, press them to our bosom, and proclaim them blessed; for our admiration for them is unbounded, and that respect and admiration will grow in intensity as the valley of the shadow of death becomes darker and deeper.—Geo. C. Calanan, reprinted from Nevada County Historical society periodical.



GOLD MINERS CHORUS OF MANY YEARS AGO

MODEL STAMP MILL TO CRUSH ORE IN FESTIVAL

The "roar of stamps" will be music to the ears of hundreds of present and returning Nevada county mining men, during the Fourth of July celebration in Grass Valley Saturday, Sunday and Monday as a large model, operating 10 stamp mill, will crush ore continuously on Mill street.

The stamp mill —two batteries of five stamps each—and each stamp weighing 30 pounds, will be displayed in the windows of the Penney store.

Floyd Wilmoth, director of the Placer College school of mines and secretary of the California Hydraulic Mining association, said the full mill, exact in smaller scale to the famous mills of the Grass Valley-Nevada City district, has been used by mining and metallurgy classes at Placer.

The crushed ore will flow over an amalgam table to pick up the fine pinpoints of gold crushed from the rock.

John F. Bongard, chief inspector of the state division of mines, has arrived in Grass Valley, to complete the transfer of gold specimens and nuggets to the J. C. Penney store windows, where close to a million dollars value will be displayed.

Bongard is working with the committee of mining men of Nevada and Sierra counties, which is arranging this exhibit claimed to be the finest showing of gold in California.

QUEEN TO RULE OVER INDEPENDENCE BALL GIVEN BY COMPANY E

A queen will reign over the Independence day ball to be held Monday evening at Veterans Memorial building, Grass Valley. She will be crowned as the climax of the evening.

The dance is sponsored by Company E, 184th Infantry, California National Guard.

Dancing will start at 9 and music will be furnished by Dan Raymer and his orchestra.

Forest Springs Farm Center Will Operate Lunch Counter July 4

Forest Springs Farm Center will operate a lunch counter on Monday, July 4, to be located on the N.I.D. lot, south of the Community Hospital on South Auburn street, Grass Valley.

The center will serve roast beef sandwiches and potato salad, coffee, cold drinks and ice cream.

The proceeds will be used to complete the new clubhouse on the Auburn highway, south of this city.

TWIN CITIES READY FOR BIG HOLIDAYS

Grass Valley high school will be guests of honor at the reunion picnic. A program and tours to historical points of interest in the area will follow a traditional pasty picnic dinner.

Folk dancers from all over northern California will gather Sunday afternoon and evening in a regional folk dance festival starting at 1 p.m. in the Veterans Memorial building. Intermission will last from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

A traditional baseball game will be played at 2:30 p.m. at Watt park with the Grass Valley Braves and the Nevada City Athletics of the Placer-Nevada league competing in a regular league game.

A band concert and fireworks at Hennessy field will complete Sunday's activities.

Harleth M. Brock will marshall the huge centennial parade into line starting at 9:15 a.m., in the Boston Ravine area of Mill street, and will move it north on Mill at 11 o'clock. The parade, consisting of approximately 75 floats and several marching units, will continue north on Mill to Main street, turn east to Auburn street, then south to Race street, where it will disband.

A reviewing and judges stand will be placed at the corner of Mill and Bank streets.

Three bands will be in line of march representing Grass Valley, Nevada City, and the Salvation Army of Grass Valley. Drum and bugle corps and drill teams of veterans organizations of Nevada county and the Native Sons and Daughters Parlors of Grass Valley and San Francisco will add marching music to the parade.

The parade will disband in the vicinity of the Veterans Memorial building, where following the parade patriotic exercises will be held with Joseph R. Knowland, Oakland, chairman of the California Centennial Commission and newspaper publisher, will be guest speaker. He will be introduced by Earl Covey, Grass Valley member of commission.

Peter T. Conmy, Oakland, Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, will also be one of the speakers on the program.

The Grass Valley band will present a concert Monday afternoon on Mill street with selections by the Gold Miners chorus. Mill street will be roped off for a traditional water fight between the fire departments of Nevada City and Grass Valley, a muck shoveling contest, and races for the children.

The Grass Valley Braves will play an exhibition baseball game with the Colusa Prunepickers at 2:30 at Watt park.

Winding up the three days will be a Independence day Ball in Veterans Memorial building sponsored by Company E, 184th Infantry, California National Guard.

Both cities are in gala dress for the celebration with banners and decorations and flags filling the streets of the business districts. Many of the business houses of both cities are displaying relics of the pioneer days. Two particularly interesting windows show an 1860 cash register that used wooden balls as computers, and operating model 10-stamp gold mill.

One store window, under constant armed guard, will contain $1,000,000 in gold and gold-bearing ore.

FIVE-FOOT DOLLHOUSE WILL BE PRESENTED DURING CELEBRATION

If you are a girl, aged from six to 12—how'd you like to win the most beautiful playhouse you've ever seen?

Any little girl would enjoy being "lady-of-the-manor" of the completely built, decorated and modern playhouse to be given away as a centennial celebration feature by the Calida Lumber company.

The playhouse is of five-foot size, has regulation doors and windows, shimmers in glossy paint and all-in-all is a junior sized house.

Free tickets are being distributed by real estate offices in both Nevada City and Grass Valley with real estate people cooperating 100 per cent. Every youngster entering a float in the junior parade tomorrow will receive free tickets.

The awarding of the Calida playhouse will be made on the afternoon of July 4 in front of the Veterans Memorial building.

DEDICATION, BURIAL GROUND JULY 3

held the war intervened and an appropriate time did not present itself until this year.

On the committee that year were William H. James, now in the Philippine Islands; Miles D. Coughlin, Clarence Martz, and Dr. Chapman. Added to the committee for Sunday's program are Charles Veale, George H. Calanan, and Ellsworth D. Sherman, president of Hydraulic Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Sargent, the man whose memory will be honored Sunday, was probably Nevada county's greatest personality. Starting life in Massachusetts as an apprentice printer, Sargent climbed to the post of U. S. minister to Germany during the administration of U. S. Grant, and filled countless offices on his way to the pinnacle of his career.

His first political job was secretary to a U. S. senator from Massachusetts. He came west with the tide of argonauts, tried his hand at mining and became a partner in the Nevada Journal in 1852. He was first Noble Grand of Oustomah Lodge No. 16, International Order of Odd Fellows in 1853. Sargent was a city trustee. He studied law, passed the bar examination and was elected Nevada county district attorney, all in less than one calender year.

Sargent organized the Republican party in Nevada county and attended the Chicago convention that placed Abraham Lincoln in the White House. Sargent went to Washington the same time as congressman from California. He returned to the capital for two more terms as congressman and once as U. S. senator.

Grant appointed him minister to Germany, and the Nevada county pioneer was brought home by request of Chancellor Bismarck for daring to call him a liar when Bismarck accused the American meat packers of shipping trichina infected pork to Germany. Grant offered Sargent the portfolio to Russia but the argonaut returned to San Francisco where he died in 1887.

When Laurel Hill cemetery, San Francisco, was abandoned the statesman's remains were cremated and scattered over Quaker hill, where he had hunted gold in his first years here.

J. R. KNOWLAND TO BE SPEAKER FOURTH OF JULY

Joseph R. Knowland, Oakland, chairman of the California Centennial commission, and publisher of the Oakland Tribune, will be the principal speaker at patriotic exercises to be held at the Veterans Memorial building immediately following the parade Monday.

Earl Covey, program chairman, said others on the program will include Peter T. Conmy, Oakland, Grand President of Native Sons of the Golden West; opening and closing selections by the Grass Valley band under the direction of Harold George Sr.; vocal solo of the "Star Spangled Banner" by Lloyd Geist, Nevada City; pledge of allegiance led by Troop 4, Boy Scouts of America, Grass Valley, selections by the Grass Valley Gold Miners Chorus directed by Emory Ford; invocation by the Rev. Donald Getty; and benedicition by the Rev. Frank Buck.

Introductions will be by Earl Covey.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY WILL BE PRESENTED

The Nevada County Tavern Owners association secured the Fourth of July celebration fireworks and the Junior Chamber of Commerce will set them off during the Nevada County centennial celebration.

The display will be set off under license and instructions from Grass Valley and state fire suppression leaders.

They were secured by contributions from the Tavern Association members of Nevada City and Grass Valley and duplicate their Fourth of July contribution of last year.

LT. COL. CHAPMAN COMPLETES COURSE AT ARMY COLLEGE

Lt. Col. Warren C. Chapman, Inf., was graduated last week from a regular course at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He is on his way to the Presidio of Monterey, where he will attend an army language school. Completion of that will see him transferred to the Strategic Intelligence School, Washington, D. C.

On completion of that course in the capital he will be sent to Rome, Italy, to be assistant military attache. Col. Chapman expects the tour of duty in Italy will last three years.

Col, and Mrs. Chapman, and two children, Richard (Rickie) Warren, and Judith (Judy) Ann, will arrive here tomorrow for a week-end visit with his father, Dr. C. W. Chapman, and sister, Miss Helen Chapman, and to attend the dedication ceremonies of the A. A. Sargent monument Sunday afternoon at Pioneer cemetery.

Col. Chapman served in Italy during World War II as commanding officer of the first battalion, 133rd infantry regiment, 34th division. His unit took the first block of houses in the occupation of Cassino, and he was plans and operations officer for the Anzio beachhead campaign. Chapman was wounded in the final days of fighting in the Po valley.

Scott Asks Judgment On Garage Account

Ray Scott filed suit in Nevada county superior court yesterday asking $612.23 judgment against Ainsley Fouyer and James Fields. Scott charges the amount represents an unpaid bill for repairing a logging dolly and automobile owed Hugh Steinhoff and S. R. Dahl, former owners of the Plaza Garage, and who assigned the accounts to Scott when he purchased the business recently.

Other actions filed in superior court were quiet title cases. They were George and Gladys Bartlett versus estate of William Kuster on Mooney Flat property and C. A. Beraudiere versus Alney C. Felt and Louise M. Eddie on lots 3, 4, and 5 of block 35, Nevada City.

Billy Weyman Rides Runaway Automobile To Crash Into Porch

Billy, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Weyman, Willow Valley road, jumped on the running board of the family car as it was parked in the Weyman lot, and the jar was sufficient to start it rolling down the incline.

Gaining momentum the car, with Billy hanging on for dear life and screaming, crashed through a picket fence and into the yard of a neighbor, Mrs. Mabel Prentiss, between two trees and into the porch of the Prentiss home.

The impact smashed the front end of the car and jolted the porch supports loose. Billy was still hanging onto the car, unhurt when it completed its unorthodox tour.

STATE CC RAPS U. S. FOREST PRACTICES ACT

The forest practices act (S. 1820) recently introduced in congress was characterized by James Mussatti, general manager of the California State Chamber of Commerce, as "one of the most far reaching attempts in American history to establish federal control of our natural resources and our economy."

"Should the forest practices act become a law, it would place nearly all of the nation's forest and watershed areas—both federally and privately owned—under federal management, with the secretary of agriculture as chief administrative officer", Mussatti said.

An analysis of the bill, just completed by the state chamber, shows the measure would:

1. Authorize the secretary of agriculture to establish and enforce forest practice rules in privately owned forest areas in all states and territories where there is current or potential output of commercial forest products.

2. Authorize the secretary of agriculture to establish and enforce forest practice rules in privately owned forest areas located on watersheds of navigable streams, or which are so located as to affect the value of any federally owned land.

"Federal acreage added to private holdings, would account for nearly 95 percent of all America's forest areas", Mussatti continued. "More than 65 percent of the nation's total forest acreage is in private ownership. In addition, the federal government owns nearly 30 percent. State and local governments own only about five percent. The forest practices act can easily be interpreted to give control of nearly all private forest holdings to the secretary of agriculture.

"California contains one-seventh of the nation's standing saw timber. The federal government already owns about 48 per cent of California's commercial forest area.

"Proponents of the measure contend that in past years, wasteful logging damaged timberlands, water supply and soil fertility. That was true in earlier times.

"Under the California forest practice act of 1945, a code regulates lumbering operations on all of the state's private forest lands. These rules were drawn up by the industry under the 1945 legislation, then approved by the state board of forestry. Specific practices were formulated for different California areas and varieties. These practices are now successfully used. Several other states have similar provisions.

"However, federal authority, under the new proposal would establish a national control plan with rules and penalties. The carefully prepared California forest practice act would be nullified unless the secretary of agriculture gives approval.

"Should the secretary of agriculture consider a state delinquent in executing its federally approved plan, he could, under the proposed act, order correction. If his order was not complied with within a year, the federal government might take charge of that state's forest areas, and the secretary of agriculture could withdraw all federal financial aid to that state for forest control, flood control or other natural resources programs.

"Without a specific federal permit, a landowner, under the proposal would have no freedom in managing his own holdings in excess of 40 acres in area. A fine up to $5000 could be levied against any person or firm selling forest products from any forest area the offender might own within the county where the alleged violation was cited.

"The bill would empower the secretary of agriculture to terminate any lumber operation he believes violates his established rules. Enforcement rests with federal district courts upon application of the secretary of agriculture—but the proposed law would limit federal court procedure to review of evidence from the secretary of agriculture's hearings.

"The measure proposes appointment by the secretary of agriculture of a twelve-man national forestry board, with himself as chairman. This board would grant states three years' time to submit forest practices for their private lands—the plans to be approved by the secretary of agriculture. It would divide the nation into administrative areas, with the chief administration officer in each area appointed by secretary of agriculture.

"Cost to the federal and state governments for such a program has not been announced by its proponents. Estimates made by private sources place the minimum at $35,000,000 annually."

Placer County Clubs Guests of Nevada City Garden Club Last Week

The Auburn and Lincoln Garden clubs were guests of the Nevada City Garden club at a 1 o'clock pot-luck luncheon served in the social hall of the Methodist church recently. The hall was decorated with many beautiful bouquets. The flower arrangement on the tables consisted of clematis, petunias and matilya-poppies.

During the luncheon Mrs. R. W. Renfree introduced Miss Gertrude Goyne who acted as mistress of ceremonies.

Mrs. Mae Herold, a member of the Lincoln Garden club, spoke for her group.

Mrs. Mildred Schenck, president of the Auburn Garden club, presented her members.

The interesting feature of the afternoon was the round table discussion of what each club had accomplished and the projects each is planning for the future. It was also an opportunity for neighboring club members to become better acquainted.

The guests were taken on a tour of the garden of Mrs. A. W. Hoge, who has not only a lovely flower garden but a well laid-out vegetable plot. Mrs. Hoge graciously served cool refreshing drinks at the end of a pleasant afternoon.

Water is the all-important element in the garden this month. Pest control should be a matter of regular rouine.

The old idea of resting roses in July and August has been found in error. To withhold water and fertilizer during this period means starving the plants. The roses should get sufficient moisture and feeding at regular intervals.

Lift, divide and replant daffodil clumps that have been established longer than six years. Although September and October are regarded as daffodil planting months there is no reason why they can't go in earlier providing tops are dry.

July and August are ideal months for the gardener to try his hand at layering, a simple propogating measure in which a specially prepared branch of a mother plant is buried and eventually, rooted to form a new plant. Try it with azalea, abelia, barberry hydrangea and many other shrubs.

Sam Shearer, employed at the Nevada City postoffice, was taken by ambulance Tuesday to Oak Knoll hospital, Oakland, where he is expected to undergo an operation.

INDEPENDENCE—The Fourth of July is a great day for us in these United States. It is a holiday set aside to commemorate the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on that day in 1776. But to many it is a day of freedom from the desk or what ever the job may be. The vast majority do not seem to realize that we are a people with the power to direct our affairs without interference. That if we exert ourselves we have a sufficiency of means for a livelihood affording a comfortable living.

CENTENNIAL—The mines have had a century of Fourth of July under one flag! Nations who were regarded as freedom loving and independent peopls are now under foreign flags. Others have lost their identity entirely. This is truly a golden year for the gold country. But the gold production has fallen off. We're not sending anything out. Oh, is that so, how about the youth that goes forth each year from these mountains to make the cities and towns better places to live in? Our boys and grils are our best betting crops. And they'll come back, not as bad pennies, but as reunionists, such as have crowded our streets.

The Bible: "And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw here, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God" (Luke 13:11-13).

TAILINGS

By Jim Towne

MIDSUMMER—The 24th of June. A date associated with legendary since man began to compute time and tell fables. The greatest story of them all, Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream. Immortal Puck. It took the English bard to capture him from fantasy and bring him to civilization. As we write this we wonder what that scamp and his bang will be up to under the sugar pines tonight. Bottom, Flute, Quince, Snout, and the others. The huge and ancient oaks among the pines, are a fit setting for their pranks.

POSSESSION—We listened in on a conversation between a westerner and his companion from the east. We were on the bus coming through the great valley, the state's lush land of plenty. The westerner said, "I came here from the old country when a child and earned my first dollar picking cherries when I was eight years old. It's a great country, look, miles and miles of —" His companion interrupted, "That's just it miles and miles of everything orchards, forests, mountains, that's why I don't like it here. Back east a man is satisfied with an acre of land, but here he wants nothing less than a section."

CHATTER—She was easy to look at. But her chatter made one feel like clamping her mouth. It issued from her prettily painted lips in an endless stream of nothings, punctuated with a satisfied laugh at her own wit. As one remarker put it, "She'd make a swell looking wife if there was some way to muzzle that flow of nonsense," "Yea," replied another listener, "It's dames like her that drive men nuts! Gab, gab night and day!" Well, boys, if you have a lovely who suffers from chatteritis, take her to the moon. Scientist say that if you were there you would be talking by radio. The lunar world is absolutely soundless. It lacks atmosphere, and it takes air to convey sound waves.

HOMECOMING—The months of June and July are given to the custom. Schools are out. Vacationists on the move. Reunions make the papers. People of various counties, states and countries gather for a day to renew old friendships. A grand custom. We should have more of it. Here in the twin cities we are preparing for a great homecoming. What a jubilation it is going to be. But why not come to the old home town more often, why wait for a special occasion? The old town's changed! Well, how about a little midsummer night's dreaming.

The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes and gives airy nothings
A local habitation and a name.

$44,727.67 IS COUNTY SHARE OF GAS TAXES

Apportionment of California highway users taxes for the quarter ending March 31, 1949, resulted in $44,727.67 being received by Nevada county as its share of the taxes, according to an announcement this morning by T. H. Kuchel, state controller.

California's 58 counties received $10,844,303 and $4,237,473 was deposited in the state highway fund for allocation to cities. The remaining $47,129,309 was deposited in the highway fund for expenditure on state maintained highways.

Los Angeles county received the largest allocation, $3,122,429.19 and Alpine county was at the bottom of the list with $14,631.34.

Gross gasoline taxes for the quarter amounted to $36,961,122, an increase of $2,326,428 over collections for the same quarter in 1948. Refunds to non highway users of the fuel amounted to $6,316,817, an increase of approximately 27 per cent over refunds for the preceding quarter. After deducting $134,497 for administrative expenses, there remained $30,509,808 for distribution.

Over 200 Dog Tags Have Been Issued

More than 200 tags have been issued to dog owners since the recent enforcement of a city ordinance was started. Dog tag business was slow at first, according to Sam Hooper, but when the dog catcher started tossing stray dogs in the canine calaboose, the tag business boomed and the city ran out of the licenses.

Hooper said yesterday more of the tags have arrived and are available at city hall.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Now I'm Going Back To High School!

When I saw lights burning in the High School auditorium last night, I looked in to see what went on. About twenty people were listening to Buzz Ellis, the electrician, talk about television.

I slipped into a back seat and asked Hap Thomas what was up. Hap told me it was the new Self-Improvement Club. I stayed to listen—and learned a lot. Buzz really knows his stuff.

Turns out this club meets every Friday night. Each member gives a talk on the subject he knows most about. I joined on the spot because learning new things is one of my favorite hobbies.

From where I sit, it's willingness to learn from the other person that makes Americans tolerant towards so many different viewpoints and tastes in things. Just because Buzz Ellis goes for chocolate malteds, while I prefer a mellow glass of beer, doesn't mean I'm right and he's wrong. Incidentally, next week I'm going to talk on how to run a newspaper.
